

Deathwatch by Robb White

Madec was not the kind of man Ben would ordinarily have chosen as a companion for a quiet hunting trip. The only time Madec ever laughed was when he told some story about how smart he was. He was a cold man who liked to hurt things, and he was dangerous with a gun. But Ben needed money for another semester at college, and so when Madec offered to hire him as a guide to hunt bighorn sheep in the desert mountains, he agreed. It was a mistake that very nearly cost Ben his life.

This is a story of survival, of good versus evil, of doing the right thing, or giving into the easy way out. Ben finds his way in the desert without clothes, food, or water and hunted by a madman with a .358 Magnum. Will he survive?
